Stabile Segno

In the aftermath of the earthquake in 2004, the architect Giancarlo Piretti, working in parallel with Piretti, was asked to design a new building for the Segno Foundation. The project was a complex one, involving the reconstruction of a building that had been destroyed by the earthquake. Piretti's solution was to create a new building that would be a symbol of the city's recovery and a place for the Segno Foundation's activities.

The building is a masterpiece of modern architecture, featuring a central atrium with a large, circular skylight. The walls are covered in translucent, shimmering panels that create a unique, ethereal atmosphere. The floor is covered with colorful, abstract patterns and materials, creating a vibrant and dynamic space.

The building is a testament to Piretti's architectural vision and his ability to create a space that is both functional and beautiful. It is a place where art and architecture meet, and where the Segno Foundation's mission is brought to life.
